Foreword

Once again we come to that difficult but pleasing task of trying to portray in picture and story the happy moments of a year's work and play at Middle Tennessee State College. Turbulent emotions have played upon our heartstrings as during the year we have thought of our buddies "over there." Some have made the supreme sacrifice, and they and others have been decorated with the awards of valor and heroism. Mixed with the heartaches of war, however, have been moments of joy and happiness as we joined ourselves together to keep alive the noble traditions of a great institution. Tomorrow, when peace has come, may those of us who find our names on these pages gain satisfaction and pleasure from the realization that we helped to carry on for those who came back and those who will come afterwards. Momentous events have marked the 1944-1945 college year. May these pages also remind us of our home front efforts, however humble, to keep America free. If we achieve these results, the staff of this, the thirtieth volume of THE MIDLANDER, will feel amply repaid for its efforts.

Dr. J. C. Waller  Dr. C. D. Lewis  Miss Katherine Monohan
Dr. T. J. Golightly  Mr. J. H. Bayer

DEDICATION

We, the staff, do humbly dedicate this issue of The Midlander to these whose faithful service will ever be an inspiring memory to all who have known them at Middle Tennessee State College.

THE

The Training School is a vital part of the college. It is here that the prospective teachers from the college student body receive their first actual experience in the field of pedagogy. It is here that they begin their work with children in real situations. Here, also, an effort is made to give the children and the college students the best and latest in content and procedure. The Training

TRAINING SCHOOL

School endeavors to make its classrooms, its various activities, and its daily routine as nearly lifelike as possible. The school also strives to create for its students an atmosphere which is informal, free, and conducive to happiness and best effort.

ASSOCIATED

The Associated Student Body was created in response to the apparent need for an all-student organization. In this organization it is possible to seek and to bring to light the needs and desires of the students as individuals, as groups, and as a unified working body. The final aim is unity of interests, opinions, and methods of procedure, both within the student body and between the student body and the faculty.

Through the action of the three branches of government—executive, judicial, and legislative—every student is given the opportunity to offer suggestions as to the best ways of accomplishing these aims.
